CONVIVIA

FOR ITALIAN FOOD LOVERS

(Sicily, Italy)

The CONVIVIA – For Italian Food Lovers company was born in Sicily , on the slopes of the Etna volcano , from Pietro's desire to make the tradition of good, high-quality Sicilian food known, even beyond national borders.

The passion and convivial joy that fills the hearts of Sicilians, always eager to share dishes cooked with care and love for others, is the deepest feeling that gave rise not only to the brand, but to the entire project.

Pietro has clung to the roots of his Sicilian land, starting from what it generously manages to give to those who cultivate it with love: the tomato , the aubergine , the basil , the wild fennel , the chili pepper and the almond are the precious fruits in which you find the flavor of the sun and sea of Sicily.

iContadini (Puglia, Italy)

Simply translated, 'I Contadini' is Italian for 'the farmers' or 'the peasants.' The farmers' lives exist within 30 hectares of land where they grow a variety of vegetables on the open field, including peppers, eggplant, artichokes, olives, and tomatoes. The company operates all aspects of the business: growing the produce, naturally drying vegetables in the hot Italian sun, and preparing the jars for retail.

Lenticchia di Casteluccio

(Sicily, Italy)

Here, among the hills of Trapani, two fortunes intersect. On the one hand, the land, prosperous and favorable to the cultivation of unique olives, such as Nocellara del Belice, Biancolilla and Cerasuola. On the other, a family that, from generation to generation, reinforces dedication and increases experience in olive growing.

Two fortunes sealed by the desire to create an olive oil that stands out for the one factor that really matters. Excellent taste. This is the story of the Geraci family, this is the story of Geraci Oil.

PRUNETI

(Tuscany, Italy)

There's no point in looking for the origins of our family, so distant as to seem that it has always been present in San Polo in Chianti: we should cross too many centuries, too many battles, too many vicissitudes.

At any rate, thanks to some written records and to the memory of the older citizens of the town, we can go back as far as the mid-nineteenth century

IL BORG DEL BALSAMICO

History of the Borgo - The Crotti Family (Emilia Romagna, Italy)

Cristina and Silvia Crotti were born into a family where good taste and an innate aesthetic sense are a longstanding tradition.

For several years, both sisters worked in the family fashion firm, Maska, until their father, the company founder, decided to retire. This was when they decided to strike out on their own, turning the family's homespun balsamic vinegar production into a viable craft business.

This was the start of Il Borgo del Balsamico.
